Advisor

Washington, D.C. | 202.508.3489 | cgroton@bakerdonelson.com

Cade Groton, a public policy advisor in Baker Donelson's Washington, D.C. office, works with clients to address defense-related public policy issues impacting their legislative and government relations goals.

As a member of Baker Donelson's Federal Aerospace and Defense Policy Team within the Firm's Government Relations and Public Policy Group. Cade focuses on client interests relating to the Department of Defense and U.S. Congress. His practice centers on support of the Firm's military installation and defense trade policy clients while assisting the Federal Aerospace and Defense Policy Team in other issue areas, including defense and health policy matters. Cade also supports client requirements for their liaison with senior Federal Agency and Congressional officials during industry trade shows which enables engagement with senior leaders for clients throughout the year in conjunction with both domestic and international conferences.

Prior to completing his Bachelor of Arts in government at Hamilton College, Cade worked with the Firm's Federal Aerospace and Defense Policy Team as an intern.
