Justin Daniels Discusses Cybersecurity Forum in the Daily Report

At Baker Donelson's recent Cybersecurity Forum, seven Israeli cybersecurity startups pitched their services to the roughly 140 attendees, who were mostly chief information officers and other information security professionals. In this Daily Report article, Justin Daniels discusses the event, noting that the idea behind the pitch session is that if the Israeli companies develop relationships and win new business through the event, they'll open U.S. outposts in Atlanta.

"The whole thing that differentiates this is we're trying to be a true business partner and help these companies connect with prospective clients," said Mr. Daniels.
