Chris Sloan Quoted in Nashville Ledger About Tennessee Startups

As more money for startups is coming into Nashville, the city is on the cusp of greater attention from growing numbers of investors at all levels of the deal-making food chain, of young professionals moving to the city and remaking Nashville's business landscape, of a Nashville entrepreneurship community that extends outward from health care. In this Nashville Ledger article, Chris Sloan says that investors from around the country are interested in Nashville.

Mr. Sloan says, "I get calls on almost a weekly basis from Silicon Valley, New York. Investors are starting to come to Nashville on a regular basis and look for deals."
