William Reed Quoted in Mississippi Business Journal About Forrest General Case

Years after Wesley Medical Center filed a lawsuit against AAA Ambulance Service, its CEO Wade Spruill and Forrest General for allegedly denying local residents their choice of hospitals for trauma care, a judge ruled in Forrest General's favor. In this Mississippi Business Journal article, William Reed discusses the case involving his client, Forrest General.

"Wesley conceded that it did not have valid claims against Forrest General for defamation and torturous interference with business relations as originally alleged," said Mr. Reed.
