

OUR PRACTICE

Tax (Cross-Border Business)

Doing business internationally often presents major tax complications. Baker Donelson's tax attorneys have the experience to be able to assess potential tax liability issues and help you structure your operation so that you are assured of being in compliance with both U.S. and foreign tax laws.

Our tax professionals routinely represent lenders, borrowers, developers, investors and other parties to major international real estate transactions, teaming with Baker Donelson attorneys representing other legal areas to assure a complete overview of complex issues. We regularly partner with attorneys and accountants in foreign locales in order to provide site-specific, knowledgeable counsel most familiar with the rules and regulations of that country.

Clients routinely turn to us for consultation on the domestic tax effects of various foreign investments and business operations, and we have experience exploring and implementing the most appropriate, effective approaches. And our state and local tax practice offers years of experience assisting foreign companies bringing their operations to the U.S., including automobile manufacturers and chemical companies.
